HENRY STEPHENS DIES IN EAST

Henry Stephens III, age 49 years, of Detroit, well known in Grayling and also Otsego county, passed away at the summer home of his mother at Prude's Crossing, Massachusetts, Saturday, following a brief illness.

Mr. Stephens was better known to his friends in this section as "Tom." He was the eldest son of the late Henry Stephens, who, when the lumber industry was at its peak here in the north, owned the large interests located at Waters at that time. The younger Stephens maintained a summer home at Waters for many years, which is now the property of the Heart Lake Development Co.

Author of several books on South America, Mr. Stephens traveled extensively. With the death of his father in 1910 he took over the family interests, operating the largest sawmills in Michigan and later moving this business to Oregon. He also was owner and president of the First National Bank of Mt. Clemens, of mining interests in Cuba, the Stephens Lumber Co., of East Detroit, the Stephens State Bank and the Stephens Hardware Co., of the same city.

He lived at 215 Ridge Road, Grosse Pointe Farms, and was a member of the Detroit Boat Club, the Detroit Club, the Grosse Pointe Club and the Lochmoor Club. Besides his mother he leaves a widow, Mrs. Olive Winn Stephens and one son Francis Eugene, 3 years old. The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon from the Grosse Pointe home.

GOV. BRUCKER SPOKE AT GAYLORD

STATE TAXES REDUCED FIVE MILLION DOLLARS

On the invitation of some of Governor Brucker's Gaylord friends, there was a fine gathering of representative citizens of all the northern Michigan counties there Tuesday night to hear him talk on the political issues of the day.

The response was so spontaneous that the huge Lunden Hall at the Gaylord fair grounds was well filled with people. The hall will seat nearly 3000 people. In the rear of the building a number of seats had been taken out but the others were all occupied and there were many listening in from the porches.

Grayling band and the Gaylord High school band played a number of selections as the crowd was gathering.

Governor Brucker arrived at about 6:30 from Lansing and went immediately to Heart Lake club, about nine miles south of Gaylord where there was quite a large crowd awaiting dinner, and where there was a preliminary reception held in honor of the Governor. After a very appetizing dinner at the club the guests repaired to the Lunden building at the Gaylord fair grounds.

Frank Shipp of Gaylord was chairman of the program and Dr. C. R. Keyport of Grayling was the toastmaster. A couple of pleasing musical numbers were rendered after which Gov. Brucker talked for an hour and a quarter. He is a fluent speaker and in that time told many interesting and convincing things in regard to the state government and his administration.

He gave a brief resume of the work done during the special session of the legislature that was called by him last spring.

We have, he said, passed through troublesome times, and I sincerely hope and believe that prosperity is not very far off, even though many of you are still suffering keenly from this depression. People are beginning to think and constructive gain will inevitably result.

Economy in the conduct of state government and the lifting of the burden from the backs of the people, the owner of the home and farm, have occupied every minute of my time since taking office January 1, 1931.

On March 31st the legislature met at my call in special session to consider ways and means to reduce the burden of taxpayers. The members were ready to co-operate and brought their serious attention toward the consideration of the problems which confronted us.

The legislature in five weeks and three days passed forty-two acts, each one calculated to lift the burden, and not one of them containing a new duty, a new tax or a new burden. This record has not been paralleled by any other state. The legislature of no other state has this fine record of our legislature in this special session, I am sure you will agree.

Following the start made by the state administrative board and with the recommendation that the state budget be curtailed, what did I find? I found the legislature even willing to go much farther than I expected them, and as a result of their fine cooperation what has been the benefit to your pocketbook in dollars and cents? When I took over the reins of the state government the state real property tax was $29,500,000 and, as the result of the serious constructive economy since put into effect, the state real property tax for 1932, this year, will be $23,500,000, a saving to the farm and home owner of $6,000,000.

Gov. Brucker touched almost every phase of the State's economic program and his words left with the large audience an air of confidence in his sincerity and integrity. Just at this time when the whole world has had to endure the administrative grafting and clever cunning politicians, it certainly is refreshing to realize that Michigan, in the hands of Gov. Brucker, hasn't been so affected. There is no doubt of Gov. Brucker's sincerity and integrity nor of his outstanding ability as a governor. Thrilled by the fine, large audience that had come out to hear him, Gov. Brucker urged that there be a large turnout of voters on primary election day and he hoped that he not only be given a majority of the votes but that the majority be overwhelming. It looked as though everyone present was going to be a Brucker for governor advocate.

Grayling was well represented at the meeting and the Grayling band too showed its interest to its citizens by going along without being paid for their valuable time and talents. Their presence was a fine compliment to Dr. Keyport who was to be the toastmaster.

OLDTIMERS TO PICNIC SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 4

Sunday, Sept. 4 the Farmers and Oldtimers Association will hold their annual reunion and picnic at the Beaver Creek town hall.

In former years this picnic has brought together many old residents of Crawford county and most of them have returned year after year. Notices have been mailed out to old residents so no doubt there will be a large crowd from out-of-town and everyone in the County is invited to attend. All that is necessary is to see that you bring a well filled lunch basket.

There is to be a program of sports, a baseball game and dancing in the afternoon and evening. So if you want to have a good time take your family and friends to the Farmer's picnic on Sunday, Sept. 4.

BANDS HOLD PICNIC AT CHEBOYGAN

Grayling band, accompanied by several carloads of local people took in the Northeastern Michigan Band Association picnic at Cheboygan last Sunday, reported a large crowd, courteous treatment at the hands of the Cheboygan people, and an all-around good time.

Of the bands scheduled to participate in the program the following were present besides Grayling band: Alpena City band; Beaverton High School band; Gaylord High School band; Rogers City band; Cheboygan City band and Petoskey City band. This was Petoskey's first appearance as on Sunday they were royally received into the Association. The other bands of the association, who failed to show up missed a very pleasant affair.

The program of the day was similar to the one held in Grayling in June and was held at Cheboygan's Washington Park. There was the individual band concert at noon, followed by the parade in the business district. Returning to the park, Mayor M. J. Cain of that city welcomed the visitors in a most pleasant manner. He said that it was not only a harmony of music, but a harmony of friendship, when citizens of other towns were brought together in such a way. He was very cordial and his well-chosen words brought hearty applause from the crowd of visitors.

At the afternoon emcee concert, Grayling band's rendition was "Love Song."

During the business meeting Rogers City was chosen to entertain the band association at its next picnic which will be the third Sunday in June, 1933.

All the girl members of the various bands were singled out and put into one group to form a band, and E. G. Clark acted as the director. They made up a very fine band.

Miss Marie Schmidt and Howard Schmidt, who accompanied Grayling band, made a big hit with the crowd, singing a number of duets. Grayling people are always delighted to hear them; they have sung at various times during the summer at the regular Friday evening band concerts.

Free acts this year will take the form of a musical extravaganza, staged again this season by the genial Earl Taylor whose talent a year ago was so satisfactory to the crowds. Mr. Taylor is bringing to Traverse City a complete musical comedy which will be shown each day of the fair without additional cost to fair patrons.

THE CALL OF THE OUTDOORS

By "The Old Woodsman"—Phil Rich. (From Midland Republican).

Still Has Trout.

The AuSable river has perhaps been the most talked of river in Michigan. Thousands have fished it and its various branches and still it seems to team with trout. Good catches were reported by several fishermen on a trip downriver Sunday. Foolishly we left our tackle in the car, and then wished we had it a hundred times.

Dan Stephan, who was our guide at Grayling, was the only member of the family of six boys and six girls who was not born in France. He first saw the light of day shortly after his father settled on a 160-acre tract of cork pine about 15 miles downstream in '78. His brothers Henry and George still live on the old place. Dan is a guide and at off times a carpenter. These men know the AuSable.

At one time grayling, with their beautiful fins, were native of this stream. Brook trout were planted and it did not take them long to take control. Now a fisherman may catch speckled, brown and rainbow trout, but of late Dan says the browns seem to be getting the upper hand and are most frequently caught.

Dan says the first trout he remembers was caught by his brother.

Water Flows Fast?

According to Dan the fast-flowing AuSable only averaged about three miles an hour or slightly over that when the government survey was made. A boat makes about 5 to 6 miles an hour on it with little paddling.

The trip to Mio can be made with one of the long river boats in two days, but it is advisable to take longer. Dan says he has run the whole river in four days.

The water in the AuSable is kept cold along its course by numerous springs along the bottom or banks. Many boil up leaving soft spots in the sand.

The AuSable does not freeze over in winter but at times becomes impassable with slush ice.

Agree With Dan.

We talked about the outdoors, its game, the regulations for taking it and many things.

Dan thinks the spearing should stop, especially through the ice. We agree. All spearing should stop. It results in taking of the big fish. These fish are seldom caught with hook and line, but once in a while one is hooked. One or two such fish hooked in one season is worth more in advertising to the state than a hundred speared by residents in winter.

This old timer also thinks the law on trout limit is wrong. It has long been our notion that there should be no limit in size but a limit to the catch. Inexperienced fishermen kill thousands of illegal trout. Experienced ones kill others when they are hooked. Fly hooks are often particularly bad killers. Small trout taste as good as big ones. Why not keep all caught.

A dead porcupine floating in the river gave us another point for discussion. Dan said he believed one jack rabbit would actually destroy more trees by cutting them at the ground than a dozen porcupines eating up in the top. We are inclined to agree again. Even if they ate a few trees we'd say the damage is negligible. Why kill them off needlessly. Here again is an animal worth a lot to Michigan for advertising. Tourists seeing one in the woods get a great "kick" out of it. These animals are not thick enough to do any substantial harm. Some fellow flipped a match in the brush along the AuSable last year and did more harm than all the porcupines in the United States would do if concentrated in this region.—Midland Republican.

(From Detroit Times.)

George Russell at the typewriter:

A lone fisherman, who had driven 300 miles on Saturday for one day's fishing Sunday on the main stream of the AuSable, had camped on the bank 10 miles below Grayling and had overstepped. By 8:30 Sunday morning, wading upstream, he had taken one small trout and was trying hard to make up for lost time. Not another fisherman had been seen, but 10 or 12 boats had shot swiftly downstream, disturbing his fishing—causing him to grumble.

For a few minutes no boats came. Upstream a big brown flashed in the sunlight—partaking of a late breakfast. The fly flew towards the waiting trout and around the bend shot another boat—then another—then many others. The big brown was saved—a fisherman's disposition ruined. Later, as the sixtieth boat shot past, a girl called, "Only 42 more to come." Then the fly-caster learned that he was the sole fisherman in 50 miles of river and that he had unwittingly chosen for his outing the day of the "First Annual AuSable River Canoe Carnival."

More than 500 men, women and children spent one of the most enjoyable days of their lives, slipping swiftly in river boats and canoes down 50 miles of river from Grayling to the North Branch. Lunch at Stephan's Bridge, enlivened by the Grayling Band, Stops at Old Man Shaw's picturesque bubbling spring—and the thrilling finish where the fast waters of the Main Stream and North Branch meet—and four men, waist deep, halted the boats from continuing on to Mio. Super there on Jordan's beautiful island and happy moonlight ride home via trucks, trailers and even Cadillac and Packards.

Spike McNeven, arranger, Walt Shaw, Tom Wakeley, Mike Mikesell and the many other guides who furnished boats and their own services as pilots made possible the outing.

Mr. Spike McNeven, Grayling, Michigan.

Dear Mr. McNeven:

I want to drop you a line to express my appreciation of the very fine way in which you and the people of Grayling handled last Sunday's trip down the AuSable.

The trip was one long to be remembered. Never having been on the river before, everyone in our party marvelled at its beauty and the delightfulness of such a trip and I want to thank you especially for your efforts in making everything so comfortable and pleasant for us.

In talking to one of our executives here about the trip, he expressed the desire that sometime beginning next Monday, he would like to do some trout fishing on the AuSable and asked me to secure some information for him. Will you, therefore, please write me stating the customary charges for a competent guide and the boat rental, if any, and your recommendation as to the best point from which to start for a day or so of fishing?

These gentlemen may wish to make up a party of four and either make a day trip or camp over-night and make a fishing trip of three or four days. Any information you can give me will be appreciated. An early reply will be appreciated as the gentleman in question will leave here Saturday.

Sincerely,

August 15, 1932

Dear Spike:

We arrived this morning—8:29 at the office, direct from a few hours' stopover at Owosso last night, feeling that we had had a perfect holiday and one that we shall never forget.

For some time I had the job of organizing and carrying through the details of entertainment of groups of people visiting here so I can fully appreciate just what you accomplished yesterday. In the first place you had an idea which simply thrilled people—you don't know how much until you have nothing like that river for a few years. Then the provision for every one and the smoothness with which it all moved ahead gave every one the feeling that it was a party planned just for them.

You put in real work and perhaps won't hear half the appreciation people really felt so I am just passing along some of the remarks which were made to us through the day. I don't believe you could know how much it was all enjoyed without being a guest yourself. The people with me were amazed that such an opportunity was extended to them and with the way they were treated by each one who had anything to do. They all said that it was absolutely the first time they had ever known of anything like that with "no strings attached" and if they keep on advertising at the rate they've gone the last twelve hours, it should result in some return. The men of the party are particularly interested in that type of vacationing and have many friends who will be ready listeners.

I certainly wish to thank you for your interest in our party. We enjoyed the day so much because we were so comfortable. The canoe was beautiful and we could move so freely that we felt better at the end of the trip than when we started and were really disappointed that it was over. I was particularly glad that Mr. Slaven was our guide for he was so well acquainted with the river that he entertained us all the way down with information about the points we were passing and I feel right up to date now on things that were getting to be a little hazy. He was very considerate of our comfort and a lot of fun.

Hans Peterson brought our car down and going back he told us interesting things about his work in that country so we had another treat. You see that all means much more to us when we have so few trips up there.

We were delighted with the idea of "just going along" with that trip but we felt that when you already had your hands full you did many things to make that day for us one we won't forget and I hope you know that I do appreciate it.

The only thing I might have wished for in Grayling yesterday was more time to see people I know there for it seemed very natural.

Sincerely,

J. Helen Bingham.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 25, 1932

JUDGE P. M. HALLER of Bay City, Democratic candidate for congress, 10th congressional district, was a visitor in Grayling Tuesday afternoon. He was calling upon some of his Democratic friends and endeavoring to get a Democratic organization formed here. He is a lawyer and a business man and served in the World War. He says that he feels confident that he can, if nominated, defeat Roy O. Woodruff, the present incumbent, in the November election. A change in congressman in this district might not be so bad but it doesn't strike our fancy to add another Democratic Michigan congressman to the House of Representatives. Under the speakership of Garner the Democratic House seems to have made a mess of things. Mr. Haller said that Woodruff would be easier to defeat in the November election than Carl Holbrook, Woodruff's opponent. The latter is new in the Congressional game and, judging from some things we have heard, isn't wise enough to high power campaigning so it doesn't look as tho he could defeat Woodruff. But, as we said before, a change wouldn't be so bad. Mr. Haller was accompanied by Alfred L. DeWaele of Bay City, secretary of the Bay City Democratic club. The latter is a graduate of Grayling High school.

SENATOR BEN CARPENTER of Harrison was a caller in Grayling Tuesday morning. He has been looking into matters pertaining to the Grayling trout hatchery, and says that he intends to see that this hatchery gets a fair break with the Conservation commission. He is looking into reports concerning the hatchery and says that he intends to find out honest facts and doesn't intend to let favoritism nor prejudices work to the detriment of the Grayling hatchery. If Mr. Cook, state superintendent of hatcheries, has any prejudice against Grayling hatchery or its management he intends to find out why. To us it looks as if Cook wasn't able to get by with his theories, formed from necessity rather than from honest practical knowledge of the trout hatchery business.

There is no doubt but that Supt. Zalsman of the Grayling hatchery knows more about actual and practical trout culture than any of the theorists on the State board. If Phil wasn't quite so impetuous and vindictive and would apply a little more diplomacy in handling his work, he could have, we believe, become nationally famous as a trout culturist. But Phil just can't stand anything but out-and-out honest tactics, and flies off the handle pretty easily. But that shouldn't keep the commission from giving the Grayling hatchery an honest deal. That hatchery was built by Grayling men with Grayling money, together with the aid of others who had personal interest in our trout streams. Now that the State forced us to sell the institution for the paltry sum of $10,000, when it cost us over double that amount, it does seem that this hatchery should be given every opportunity to function, instead of seemingly being curtailed. Hundreds of fine breeder fish were liberated in the streams during the past two years and now the Commission purchases all its trout eggs. Disease in the Grayling trout, they say, is the reason for not using them for breeding. But Mr. Zalsman says that is not true. Apparently members of the Commission swallow every opinion offered by its so-called experts as the truth, instead of going out themselves and giving an impartial examination of these affairs, and consulting those who really have practical knowledge of the business.

Mr. Zalsman doesn't like to have us bring his name into our articles for fear that the Department might blame it to him. But he had nothing to do with this article and won't know anything about it until he reads it after publication.

MR. WELSH AND THE STATE POLICE

The attack made by George Welsh on the State Police as an establishment, in his speech at Benton Harbor, is not the sort of an utterance to be expected from a man familiar with Michigan and its needs, and aspiring to become its Governor.

Mr. Welsh says he would abolish the State Police. He says that the eighty-three sheriffs of Michigan counties are charged with the duty of maintaining peace in those counties, that the State Police organization is a "direct duplication," and that "either we don't need the sheriffs or we don't need the police."

Mr. Welsh remarks also, "If we got rid of the police we wouldn't have to be building $100,000 barracks for them."

To argue for the extinction of the State Police because a barracks which is not imperatively needed has been constructed is like contending for the discontinuance of a metropolitan police force because a needless station house has been erected for their use. So far as the question of "duplication," which Mr. Welsh raises is concerned, whatever duplication has arisen exists because it has become necessary for the public security to create a general, State-wide peace force to perform work beyond the scope of any county officer with necessarily limited jurisdiction and resources.

In that connection there are people who say that the office of sheriff has outlived its usefulness and ought to be eliminated in favor of a general State police head, or at least should be diminished in importance and left to perform certain purely local duties.

At that point we will not argue at the moment except to say this: If it ever comes to a choice between the State Police system and the county sheriff system, there can be no doubt that the best interests of society will demand the survival of the institution best able to protect people against modern criminal methods as they have developed since the advent of the fast motorcar, the automatic pistol and the portable machine gun.

A rural sheriff and his staff cannot provide any security against the Twentieth Century bandit. Only a well supported, statewide police force equipped with modern weapons and modern means of transportation and highly mobile, can do that. For a State to go without that sort of protection today is pure madness.

If Mr. Welsh really is in earnest in his expression of hostility toward the State Police, he raises a legitimate doubt about the wisdom or safety of considering him for a position that would place the security of the people of Michigan in his hands.

DEPT. OF STATE

STATE NEWS BULLETIN

Nearly 28,000 Michigan automobile owners thus far have been aided by the action of the Department of State in starting the half-price sale of automobile license plates on Aug. 1 instead of Sept. 1.

In 1931, the half-price sale started Sept. 1 and records show that for the first two weeks of that month, a total of 19,122 sets of plates were sold bringing in $124,411.40 in revenue.

This year the half-price sale started on Aug. 1 and during the first two weeks of the month 27,930 sets of plates were sold for $199,624.02.

These figures indicate that at least 8,808 additional automobile owners secured use of the cars than would have been the case had the half-price sale of plates started Sept. 1.

The change in the time of selling plates at half-price was made only after every member of the legislature had been consulted and after a majority of both senate and house of representatives indicated that they were in hearty accord with the plan.

From statistics compiled by the United States Bureau of Mines and the American Petroleum Institute, it is estimated that gasoline tax collections throughout the United States will show a decline of approximately seven per cent for the first six months of 1932, as compared with the same period in 1931.

Reports of the gasoline tax division of the Michigan Department of State for the first six months of 1932 show the actual decline in collections in this state to be but 2.13 per cent.

One of the reasons for the exceptional showing made by Michigan is an improved method of reporting and collecting the gasoline tax.

Grayling sponsored something original, something they can enlarge upon, and look forward to and work for as a tremendous magnet to pull summer visitors and pleasure seekers to that community from year to year, if they only take up the threads of that canoe and boat trip they treated hundreds of people to last week, when a great fleet of canoes and all kinds of small craft put out from Grayling down the beautiful Audsable river with hundreds of guests aboard and spent the day on a long boat ride down the river. It was great, and say all who partook, and how much bigger and greater it can be made, and what a lot of things can be added to it, to attract the people there and hold them there. We hope it is made prominent and out of it our neighbors bring fame and fortune to their splendid little city—Cheboygan Observer.

MICHIGAN AFFAIRS

BY A. H. GANSER

The Hectic Campaign Opens.

Three weeks more remain of the personal combat for place on party ballots. The primary elections on Sept. 13 will end that phase of our local, state and national campaign.

In off years we hear much about the indifference of American citizens in matters of state and politics generally. But official records today indicate that there has been a constant increase in active citizenship in Michigan, expressed by increased numbers voting. In 1920 out of a population of 2,668,412, we find 887,545 voting, or 33.2 per cent. In 1930 Michigan's population had increased to 4,482,325, of whom 83,000 actually voted, or 20.5 per cent. That is a most encouraging sign of the times.

These figures seem to refute the claim that our primary election system is less desirable than the old political boss controlled party conventions, resulting usually in minority elections, and minority control in Congress and state legislatures. Thanks to the modern press and the radio, our Michigan citizens and voters are also much better informed on current politics, candidates and programs, than was possible at an earlier date. That also is good news.

For voting at the polls is more a question of quality than of mere quantity. Well informed, and well meaning voters will usually get the best results. To that good end, our 1932 system of party primary and general election, give ample opportunity for self expression, elimination and final decision. In the primary election it is the party and family affair. Personalities and personal views and programs govern. Thereafter the election campaign is carried forward by our national parties, candidates and programs.

Constructive Criticism Helps Much. This modern American system of primary and general elections, gives to our people the broadest field of self government. We hear much in these days of one party political control. But whether it be in the solid Democratic states of the southland, or the strongly Republican states up here, our people under this system really have two effective opportunities for political checks and balances. Down south, where a Democratic nomination has for more than 60 years been usually tantamount to election, the primary election is of more importance than the November finale. Thus it has come to pass that the people hear more criticism and information about candidates and political programs in September than in November. In any event this gives about the same final result as though two parties were fairly well balanced in any state, and thereafter constantly striving to be the "ins" against the "outs." Personal candidates criticism against political candidates of the same party for the same place, are apt to be more vitriolic and querulous than the election clash between Democrats and Republicans. Constructive criticism is always needed in our system of government. To err is human. Lucky the community, state and nation, that in recurring elections manages to choose the less of two evils. The first requirement for wise selection of parties and candidates at the polls, lies in worth while information. Naturally the people know more about men in office, than about those who would like to displace them. Hence the modern American trend for civil service and longer terms of office tenure, with shorter election ballots. America needs more business in government and less politics in business. By the same token, we need to apply the rules of business to our public offices and servants. Proven ability and valuable experience are primary requirements, always.

Good Public Servants Needed. In a sense, every American voter is an executive citizen. He has the right to expect faithful and efficient service from every public office holder, without the need of constant supervision. The test of executive ability lies in getting proper results with a minimum of loss of time, money and effort. That rule goes in private business, and should go in public affairs. The faithful public servant should be able to trust his constituents to do him full justice at the polls, without much need of further log rolling or wire pulling. Confidence should be mutual, for best results. On the other hand, Americans must beware of conceding too much to an office holding class. They are apt to become bureaucrats and autocrats. Like the political bosses of old, they might fall into the attitude of "the public be damned." So eternal vigilance and alertness in the part of every American citizen, is today the price of good government. In this hour our local, state and national government are directly in the hands of our voters. On Sept. 13 they can choose the persons they prefer for certain public offices and tasks. On Nov. 8 they can choose between the candidates and programs for service of both major political parties. The average citizen and voter will find much help in making these decisions, by listening in on the campaign talks of the party leaders and candidates, and by reading their official declarations of principles and programs. The very scope of choice thus open to every citizen and voter, assures that direct responsibility to all the people by our public servants, which makes for good government. Thereafter be it ever remembered, that even among a chosen twelve there was one Judas Iscariot. Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty and of equity and justice for all.

WILL ROGERS LIKES EDITORS

The National Editorial Association met in Los Angeles recently and Will Rogers evidently attended some of the meetings, for here is what he says about the association:

"Beverly Hills, California, July 27—We have a great bunch out here prowling around. It's the National Editorial association, composed of editors in smaller towns and weekly publications. They are just eating their way around the country, having a good time, and getting a lot of pleasure out of it. And giving every one that meets 'em a close-up of just about as representative a gang of Americans as would be possible to band together—intelligent, well read, and no national advertising controls their pages. They are not concerned enough to think they 'mold public opinion.' They just go along and service their community with the most indispensable article that it has. And yet their real power is greater than all your metropolitan dailies combined. Any person that don't read at least one well-written country newspaper is not truly informed. Yours, WILL ROGERS."

Fat Man Reduces 53 Pounds—Oh Boy!

Don't be stubborn, you big fat men—throw off your fat before your fat throws you into the discard. Do as Mr. S. A. Lanier of Sawtell, Calif., did—read this letter: "I have used two reducing belts to no benefit but since taking Kruschen Salts each morning in my coffee I have taken off 7 lbs. in a week and eat most anything I like. I weighed 243 lbs. 6 months ago and now I weigh 190 lbs."

Take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water every morning—cut down on fatty meats, potatoes and sweets—now you know the safe way to lose unsightly fat. For a trifling sum you can get a jar of Kruschen Salts that lasts a week at any drug store in the world—but be sure and get Kruschen—your health comes first.

INTERESTING ITEMS OF NEWS GATHERED FROM THE FILES OF THE AVALANCHE OF 23 YEARS AGO.

M. P. Olson has made a fine improvement in his residence by fresh paint, and bright color.

Died—August 20th, in Grayling, Nelson Orin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chris Heesli, aged five months and nine days.

As we go to press we learn that J. J. Collen's little girl fractured a leg below the knee, by falling while at play.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Joseph left Tuesday for New York and Boston to purchase a stock of fall and winter goods.

Miss Mary E. Fleming left on Monday for her home in Saginaw after a three weeks visit with her brother, Rev. J. H. Fleming.

Wilson Hickey of South Branch was in town a couple of days last week on business and visiting old friends.

A sharp frost Saturday morning made our agriculture population look decidedly blue. Corn and potatoes are badly burned.

Mrs. Holloway S. Buck of Hardgrove has moved to Detroit for a season, where she will live with her son.

A special meeting of the Board of Supervisors is called for this week to close up all matters connected with the building of the new county infirmary.

We are glad to learn that James Woodburn has received a deserved promotion from freight to passenger train conductor. He has the Lewis-ton run.

Mrs. J. H. Fleming and Master Ralston Fleming are expected home the last of the week. They have spent seven or eight weeks vacation at Brooklyn, Mich.

The annual reunion of the Northwestern Michigan Soldiers and Sailors association will be held at Rose City, September 15th, 16th, and 17th.

John Johnson and family who moved to Lansing the first of the month, are now nicely located. Mr. Johnson has secured a desirable position in the Olds Motor Works. He will make good wherever he may be.

Alvin LaChapelle has severed his connection with the Avalanche office, after nearly a year and a half start in learning the "Art Preservative of all Art." He is now engaged as one of the night freight wretches at the depot.

M. P. Rouske and his wife, have been the guests of her sister, Mrs. C. W. Amidon for a week, and on Tuesday, with Sheriff Amidon and his wife started for the Soo. They went from St. Ignace by rail and will return by boat, reaching home Saturday or Sunday. It is a pleasant trip.

T. W. Hanson was somewhat warm under the collar one day last week, and will have the sympathy of all the people of the village. He plowed and graded the sides of a mile of road which the town had graveled and seeded it to clover, and set out over half a mile of shade trees on each side, all of which were growing finely, when nearly fifty of the village, cattle without a herder, wandered by and pulled branches from several of the young trees and broke some over and to add insult to injury the entire herd stampeded through his garden, which is claimed to be the finest in the county. Who wouldn't be warm? It will be the finest drive out of the village if the trees can be protected.

J. E. Crowley and wife were in Cheboygan the 17th in attendance at the wedding of his brother, David H. Crowley.

The Douglas Company have about 20 acres plowed.

Mrs. T. E. Douglas was calling on Mrs. Bowman Wednesday.

CAN'T GET LOST IN MICHIGAN

"You can't lose yourself in Michigan's woods and get away with it."

That is the way the Department of Conservation feels about it, and during the present summer has been able to cite several instances to prove that despite the wilderness some parts of Michigan offers the recreationist and despite the fact that there are some pretty wild spots both north and south of the Straits of Mackinac, a man has a hard time getting lost.

Elmer C. Adams of Detroit recently started a trip through the Thunder Bay River region intending to enjoy a vacation completely isolated. A few days after he had gone the Conservation Department received a plea to aid in finding Mr. Adams. The death of a relative demanded his presence home. The request was referred to the field administration district with headquarters at Atlanta and fire wardens, conservation officers and townsmen were notified to begin a search.

The searchers scoured the woods and streams and within eight hours Mr. Adams, believing he had left civilization behind was approached by a man wearing a conservation officer's badge and who made the prosaic remark: "Mr. Adams, you are wanted on the phone."

Searchers for missing campers, hunters and fishermen are frequent duties of conservation field men, according to the Department and invariably the missing people are found within a short time.

A hundred and fifty fire towers scattered through the northern woods are focal points to direct persons who have lost their direction and the telephone lines leading to the towers are often used as guide lines through the woods.

NO REASON TO WORRY

Jones—Brown had his life insured for a hundred thousand dollars.

"That's right; as soon as you steal your heart against her you're attracted."

TOO MANY HOLES

Mouse—So that's Swiss cheese, eh? Well, I'll take the good old American kind for mine. It's not so full of holes!

ONE OF THE FAMILY

"My dog is like one of the family."

"Which one of the family is he like?"

PART OF DRESSING

"Waiter, take this salad away, there's a hook-and-eye in it."

"Yesah, Yesah! Dat's a part of de dressing, sah."

HOT SUIT

DID YOU KNOW?

That since the USS Saratoga, aircraft carrier, has been in commission, over 11,000 planes have landed on her decks?

That the Saratoga, is propelled by electric machinery built to develop 180,000 horsepower, a power greater than the combined output of our six electrically driven battleships?

That in her final speed trials the Saratoga, a 33,000-ton ship, attained a speed of nearly 40 land miles per hour and is the fastest ship of her size and kind afloat?

The above information was furnished by the Navy Recruiting Station, Detroit, Michigan.

HUCKLEBERRY FINN

HUCK is a very real little boy to every reader of Mark Twain's "Tom Sawyer" and "Huckleberry Finn." It is because both the author of his story and the artist who illustrated it used real boys for their models.

The Huck Finn Mark Twain wrote about was a childhood acquaintance he portrayed exactly as he was, even to his battered straw hat and the single suspender strap that upheld his patched overalls. "Huckleberry Finn," wrote Mark Twain in his "Autobiography," "was Tom Blankenship. Tom's father was at one time town drunkard, an exceedingly well defined and unofficial office of those days. . . . In Huckleberry Finn I have drawn Tom exactly as he was. He was ignorant, unwashed, insufficiently fed; but he had as good a heart as any bad boy. He was the only really independent person, man or boy, in the community, and by consequence he was tranquilly and continuously happy and was envied by all the rest of us."

The Huck Finn the illustrator F. W. Kemble drew was Courland P. Morris, now of Audubon, N. J. Mark Twain selected Kemble because he saw a resemblance to Huck in one of Kemble's drawings in Life. Kemble in turn saw Huck in Court Morris, then sixteen years old, whom he found playing in a public schoolyard in the Bronx. For four dollars a week Court posed for every character from Aunt Polly to Tom, and it is Court whom most of us visualize when we think of Huck Finn. Court himself many years later confessed that he spent the weekly four dollars for candy!

Though the Chicago White Sox are far down toward the bottom in the American league pennant race, Ted Lyons, their star pitcher, continues to produce the type of hurling that has made him one of the greatest pitchers in that league. ## Things We Might Have Missed

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Late Dean of Men,
University of Illinois.

The story is told of Bach, the great musician, that one day he visited a distant city in which there was a cathedral containing a wonderful organ. He approached the sexton in charge requesting him first that he might be allowed to see the organ, and this request being granted, that he might play upon it. The sexton refused this second request, saying that it was quite contrary to his directions to let any stranger touch the instrument which might be injured if not carefully handled. Bach was insistent, however, and persuasive, and finally the sexton yielded.

As he listened to the great musician handling the wonderful instrument the sexton was first astonished and then held spellbound. Finally it dawned upon him who it was to whose music he was listening. There was only one man in the world who had such skill. When the music ended he came up to the player and grasped him by the hand. "You are Bach," he said, and then remembering his refusal to let the musician touch the organ, and to think I might have missed the masterpiece!"

How much we have missed—or come near missing by our stubbornness or our unwillingness to take advantage of opportunities.

I think I might have missed all the pleasant experiences which have come to me during the last forty years. I had a boy friend who had moved away from our community and whom I had not seen for a half dozen years. I had thought of inviting him to visit me, but had put off the invitation as one will in such cases. Then one day I had the inspiration and acted on it. He came. He had been to college and he persuaded me to go. But for the inspiration which led me to invite him to visit me I doubt very much that I should ever have left the farm. May be it would have been just as well, but had I not had the experience of college I should have missed a lot.

Did you ever wonder what would have happened to you and what you might have missed had you turned down a different road than the one you took one night, or if you hadn't gone to the party where you met the girl you married, or where you would be today if you had not made certain decisions a score of years ago?

STATE FAIR ENTERTAINMENTS

FINE PROGRAMS TO BE GIVEN DAILY

With entries pouring in at record rate in all departments and contrasts for space in the industrial division, the food exposition and for concessions equalling expectations the management of the Michigan State Fair and Exposition, Sept. 4 to 10, is turning attention to the entertainment features.

An entertainment "bill" of proportions never seen at the state fair is promised this year's visitors. Two days of automobile racing, featuring A.A.A. drivers; five afternoons of harness racing; the most complete Wild West Rodeo so far seen in Detroit; 10 of the country's most noted outdoor carnival acts; an internationally known band, and the biggest "Midway" group yet exhibited at the fair are some of the professional attractions.

Other additional entertainment features of the 1932 fair include the "Mutt" show on "Young Michigan's Day," when 2000 mongrel dogs will compete for prizes; the $1000 contest for drum and bugle corps of Michigan war veteran organizations on Wednesday, and the selection of the same evening of the first "Michigan's Own Girl." More than 2500 girls throughout the state already are entered in this contest. Conducts by massed bands on certain days and exhibition drills of the Champion Woodmen of America drill team on others are extra features.

With the inclusion of the first food exposition ever staged at the fair, the so-called beauty contest, the "mutt" show and the World's champion automobile race on Sunday in this year's added attractions, the 1932 state fair is offering the greatest inducement for visitors ever extended, emphasizing that this year's fair is to be bigger and better than ever in face of a reduced admission of 25 cents. Fair officials declare all phases and features of previous state fairs will be repeated this year and wherever it has been possible to improve these, this has been done. This is particularly true, they declare, of the entertainment features, both the daily, afternoon and evening programs in front of the grandstand and those scattered about the grounds or applying to certain days.

The program this year has been so arranged that each day will have special features of its own. Entries received to date for the livestock and agricultural departments are in such numbers that records will be established and additional space will be required in several instances.

POOR COMMISSIONERS PLEASE NOTICE

To Poor Commissioners of our near-by counties and all others interested:

We have talked with a number of Poor Commissioners from various parts of the state who regret the fact that there will not be a meeting of the association and who feel that much good could be accomplished by meeting and getting acquainted and interchanging ideas, for there are so many new boards that many new ideas would originate that would be very valuable to all of us. We took the matter up with the president of the Michigan association and he wrote that he certainly thinks it would be a fine thing for as many as could to get together and get acquainted and talk over our problems. Therefore we would like to hear from as many of the Poor Commissioners as are willing to attend a meeting to write me and let us know. Also to suggest the best time for holding the meeting. A number have suggested that we hold the meeting in St. Ignace, as there are quite a few of the boards from the lower peninsula who would like to attend. By meeting at St. Ignace it would not be necessary to have the autos brought across the straits and it is a central place to meet and the men could all make the round trip in one day.

We would appreciate an early reply.

A. R. HIGHSTONE, Sec.,
Mackinac County Poor Commissioners.
